A black and white illustration featuring two anime-style girls with short dark hair and large eyes. They are wearing matching patterned, short-sleeved dresses with dark collars and dark tights. They are standing in a city environment with buildings and a street visible in the background. Three speech bubbles are present: one in the top left, one in the top right, and one in the bottom left. The girl on the left is slightly behind the girl on the right.

These conclusions Kiana. As an editor, I guess I should first apologize for the relatively low quality that these releases have been in, but with the time as bad as they were, well, I got lazy. Still, even tho the scans weren't the prettiest, I enjoyed the story; ghost Kiana's involvement at the end was somewhat odd I suppose, but I like to think she was somehow integrated into the real Kiana as time went on. All in all, I enjoyed reading and working on this series. Thanks to all the staff who helped make this possible; I'd never noticed but I'm glad I'd leave someone out. You know who you are. Thanks to the fans for caring, I hope you're as happy as I am that this manga is complete. I hate scanlations with no end or sight, being able to read something from the very beginning to the absolute end is a luxury so much more satisfying.

Shareless plug: The other manga we featured this summer, Tataka! Usaka's At-Risk, is another great story you should all read (yes, it's not the same as Haori Aono or that you can't win a smaller name). Goodreads is including it! 5 though. If you choose to get it from them, but you can't pick that up to our channel.
